

Sussex Poets Competition 2015: Commended

On Foredown Hill

by

Douglas Leitch, Hove

Days,
certain rays
passing through certain gases
covering this mass
make of one still hemisphere
a glowing caul.
As the world beneath revolves
we wake, then sleep.
That's all.
The clown walks on the circus ball.