

Pulse
By Isobel Thrilling

Outside my window,

a winter tree
opens fists of twigs
to the sky,

as if
plugging into the stars.

I wish I could receive such a jolt of energy
in my bones;

we are all sieves
of space,
riddled with light.