When nothing was beyond our reach
By Jefh Davies

We sat on the beach and watched the bright moon roll across a clear sky, as we talked about
days and nights to come.

Days when we would ride on clouds to the sunset and back.

Nights when we would snatch handfuls of stars and toss them into the sea.